Background information:

The report is part of the outputs of the “Evaluating active ageing policies in Italy: an innovative methodological framework” project, financed by the European Commission, DG Employment, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities. The project started on December 2008 and ended in December 2009; it was promoted by Fondazione Giacomo Brodolini with Agenzia Liguria Lavoro, Agenzia Campania per il Lavoro and Regione Marche as partners.

Aims (brief explanation):

The aim of the project was to define and experiment a purpose-made methodology and set of indicators for integrated evaluation of the active ageing policies implemented in Italy in the light of the objectives set by the EES.

In fact, the EES includes, among its priorities, increasing the rates of participation of older workforce, and thus implementing actions for prolonging working life, but also preventing and curbing those processes of social exclusion that may be associated with age.

In particular, the project pursued the following aims:

- promoting an integrated approach for the monitoring and implementation of active ageing policies
- formulating a methodological structure for integrated evaluation of all the active ageing strategies deployed in the various areas and their contribution to the overall objective
- applying this model to the territory of the three Regions
- communicating the results to the various parties involved.

Degree of implementation/progress status/current situation:

The project ended on December 1st 2009.
